ON PARLIAMENTARY HILL

OTTAWA—Events within the Parliamentary Restaurant by the Liberal members of the House and of the Senate to the Prime Minister and the other was the testimony given to the Special House Committee on Ocean Resources control by Sir William Peterson, the widely known British shipowner with whom the Dominion Government proposes to enter into a contract for a subsidized Atlantic service under Government control of rates. In the early part of the week some important pieces of Government legislation were introduced and given a start on their way to final passage and treatment in the Senate.

At the Liberal dinner two or three things were made abundantly manifest. One is that the Prime Minister of Canada has the cordial and solid support of Liberals throughout the Dominion. Another fact is that the Liberal party was much stronger to-day than it came into power a little over four years ago, and this in spite of all handicaps. As was eloquently stated by George W. Kyte, Chief Librarian of the House, the Liberal party was much stronger to-day than it came into power a little over four years ago, and this in spite of all handicaps. As was eloquently stated by George W. Kyte, Chief Librarian of the House, the Liberal party was much stronger to-day than it came into power a little over four years ago, and this in spite of all handicaps.

Both Premier Mackenzie King and Mr. Kyte, as well as some other speakers, notably W. D. Euler, (North West) and W. G. Raymond, Brantford, made it plain that the reason for this remarkable increase in the strength of the Liberal party lies in the fact that the legislation it has from time to time submitted to Parliament and succeeded in getting into the statute books has appealed to men of fair and independent thinking and has had for its purpose the service of the needs of the whole country, as opposed to any particular section. The character of these legislative deeds has had its origin largely in the determination of the Prime Minister to do all in his power to more closely knit together the various sections of the country and remove as far as possible the geographical barriers that often divide this country.

RECORD OF THE GOVERNMENT

In an illuminating and convincing speech the Prime Minister at the dinner pointed with pride to the fact that since his government took over the reins of power there has been nothing but a steady and consistent record of the government's record in the House of Commons.

An entirely new public school geography, now in course of manufacture at the Toronto publishing houses and will be ready for use next fall. An elementary grammar, a book of hygiene and a high school arithmetic are also under consideration awaiting authorization.

HUNT STROMBERG TO FINISH FAMOUS FILM

According to advice from "The Detroit News," "The Last Frontier," the filming of a large portion of which was done in our National park—initiated by the late Thomas H. Ince to be his crowning achievement, and left unfinished at his death, will be completed by Hunt Stromberg and released through the Producers Distributing Corporation. Preparations are now being made to complete the picture.

The material already filmed consists of scenes shot in Canada in which the last of the buffalo herds are seen in a mighty stampede. None of the dramatic action was shot and therefore in completing the work, Stromberg will not be confronted with any difficulties in the matter of retakes or scene-matching.

DEBT ADJUSTMENT

ACT VERY USEFUL

Work under the Debt Adjustment Act is steadily growing as the people of the province are coming to better realization of the value of the act according to a statement made by E. J. Frean, debt adjustment commissioner, and in consequence of this Mr. Frean estimates that there will be greater use made of the act this year.

He explained it was not a matter of local conditions requiring protection under the act, but greater measures than formerly, but simply that many more people were realizing the value of the assistance which the act provided in cases where financial embarrassment was hampering operations and where pressure from creditors made it almost impossible for the farmer to carry on.

THE TEST OF A MAN

This is a test of a man,
Does he stand to the blow?
Is he willing to go,
Just as far as he can,
For the right; and not break
When his honor's at stake?
He who has plenty can pay
With a smile what he owes,
But the true splendor glows
In the spirit of him who will say:
"No dollar is mine that I get While I stand 'neath a debt."
A pledged word is easy to keep
When there's little to lose,
But when you must choose Between hardships and suffering deep
And the soft way dishonor would take
It is then that your soul is at stake.
The test of a man is the blow,
The storm and the tempest and strife
Not the soft, sunny days of his life,
But the length he is willing to go,
And the hardships he'll bear and go through,
Because it's the right thing to do.

WAINWRIGHT, ALBERTA JUNE 10th, 1925

THE HOME STORE MERCHANT.

Some people get the idea that there is a lot of profiteering in retail trade. If these folks only realized the true condition of affairs, they would realize the retail stores are doing business on a smaller margin of profit than ever before. The higher range of prices prevailing since the war has stimulated competition and has forced retail trade to remodel its system of operation and make every possible improvement and economy in its methods. The stores are saving a margin for the public as the result of improved distribution methods.

Merchants today are putting more brains into their work than ever before. They get better expert advice, they understand markets better, they train their help to render better service.

The best way to make the people of Wainwright realize the fine quality of the service they get from their stores is by consistent advertising of their stores. As they read the newspaper advertising people learn about special chances to buy goods which they would not have known about had it not been for these notices.

They learn that stores are carrying lines that they knew nothing about. They get information warning them of conditions that tend toward higher prices, and showing them how they can save money by prompt purchasing. They find out that their home merchants have been scouring the country to pick up the best merchandise available. They discover that their home stores are working with all might to provide the necessities and conveniences of life at the lowest possible price consistent with substantial merit. The advertised store is the appreciated store.

YES—SAYS THE MIRROR

In the world getting better, look in to its mirror, which is the newspaper. Consider the improvement of its columns, in the things they include, and of its advertising columns, in the things they leave out, says the Bellingham American.

So many things are now news, things which the editor of a generation ago would have rejected as beyond, the interest or knowledge of his readers—foreign news, art and musical news, archaeological and palaeontological discoveries (in other words, King Tut and dinosaurs), science, religion, education—all these are treated with a fullness indicating a recognition of the wide intellectual interests of readers.

Even the "Sunday Sup" contains an increasing admixture of intelligent features. If there is still sensationalism it is less "yellow," if some things are said plainly which used to be suggestively insinuated, that is at least more frank.

In the advertising columns, independent advertising is gone and fraudulent and deceptive advertising is going. Quack doctors have disappeared practically and quack medicine constantly grows less.

Blackmailing collection agencies are unknown; get-rich-quick speculators are largely banned; there is, of course no liquor or saloon advertising; and there is a ban on bogus "bankrupt sales," and an immensely higher standard of legitimate commercial advertising.

Berate the newspapers all you like. They doubtless need it still. But before you can say to a farmer respecting old times, "when editors called each other liars and thieves and made part of their livings from obscene and fraudulent advertising, look up some old files to remind yourself what they were like.

POOL JOINING IS VOLUNTARY

Arrangements have been perfected in the province for a membership campaign for three co-operative selling agencies—a cattle pool, a dairy pool, and a poultry and egg pool. The most one can say to a farmer respecting these is this: if you believe that either of these pools will be made a success and will help you better to market your products, join it. That was all that the old wheat pool said at the time of its first membership drive. The three pools named above are different from the wheat pool: the products they propose to handle are more perishable; still, perishable articles have been pooled elsewhere, and the farmers who are interested in cattle, butter, poultry and eggs are no doubt aware of the success. Consequently, they are in the best position to judge of the wisdom of entering the pool.

Probably everything that can be said against these co-operative enterprises here has been said against similar organizations in other places, and was said about the wheat pool when it was started. But the Alberta wheat pool from the beginning has been able to do business on its merits with the banks. In the United States the tobacco pools were at first dependent for their credits upon the federal government and the intermediate farm credit banks, but are now being largely financed by the big private banks. This is effective indication that they have taken their place as permanent institutions in the business world.

But when growers went into these American pools, and when Alberta farmers went into the wheat pool in this province, they did so of their own volition; no one forced them in. The farmers had to make up their own minds as to whether they would go in or stay out. And that is the position now in respect of the egg pool.

We are of the opinion that the success of the wheat pool will induce many farmers to regard the new pools sympathetically but the only advice we feel competent to give them, is to see in the event of the formation of the new pools, that good men of knowledge and integrity are chosen to guide them.

2,181 CARS THROUGH BANFF GATE IN MAY

During the month of May last, 2,181 autos passed through the Banff park gate, according to figures provided by J. W. Davidson, director of the Calgary Auto Club, at the board meeting Wednesday. The report shows that 1,221 cars proceeded west, and 960 went east on the highway. This is a big increase over the corresponding month of last year, when 1,167 autos

TO SELL YOUR USED CAR

At last you have found a prospect who is actually "sold" on your used car. The demonstration has been perfect; the old boss has pulled the hill, sweetly and chugged steadily along five miles an hour. The prospect gets out to examine the tires, "Blah!" You can't tell me that a car with only five thousand miles on the speedometer should have four different makes of tires on its wheels," he sneers. "And your prospect is gone. It is your fault for not making that sale—your failure to remedy the car so that it will check absolutely with your sales talk. What you haven't taken into account is that the used car buyer is a wise guy these days and that you've got to have a machine that satisfies his experienced mechanical eye.

Ask yourself the following question: then check against the car you are to sell. Do all four of the tires show a similar degree of wear? Are they the same make? Does the speedometer agree with them? Remember that 5,000 miles on the speedometer is one of the oldest that is pulled. Be different and set yours at 10,000. Even better than this leave the speedometer "as is." And if you repaint the car, don't forget to replace all dented hub caps. This insignificant feature is generally the most neglected. And the prospect is the first to spot it.

Test the upholstery to determine whether or not the padding is out of place or that the springs are depressed, especially in the driver's seat. The expense to replace it is small and this is one of the places that the expert buyer inspects for war.

Is the top in good condition? If not have it repaired. A sagging top ruins the lines of the finest machine. While doing this have all the broken side-vent windows repaired.

Are the lights in good condition? Are there any broken ones? Make sure that the fenders are free from dents. Take them of yourself. Then the repairs won't be half as large as if the repairman did the job.

How about the doors? Do they open and close properly? Do they rattle? A few new rubbers and twists of a screw driver will tighten them again.

And then the tools. Don't strip a car just because you want to get rid of it. A good tool kit will add a better price to the car and ten to one you get back the price of the tools twenty times over. And now you are pretty well set.

Suppose you invite in a friend, one who is not interested in the machine you are to sell and invite his criticism. Often he will find some highly important flaw that you have overlooked.

Now for the mechanical condition of the engine and chassis. It is essential of course that the engine be absolutely quiet. This entails a hundred things and you know best how to deal with them. In other words, the mechanical condition of the machine should be such that it will make a satisfactory demonstration under the most exacting conditions. And the storage battery will possibly need to be charged. Consider these facts carefully and you will discover that you have eliminated most of the sales resistance supplied by the prospect.

second trap-line cabins. At the second cabin he remained for three days, and it was on the ninth day that he reached the Gray Loon. There was no change. There were no tracks in the snow but his own, made nine days ago. And then, of a sudden, Barce made a change. He spent a night in the tepee. After that, whenever he was at the Gray Loon, during the days he always slept in the tepee. The two blankets were his bed—and they were a part of Nepeese. And there, all through the long winter he waited.

If Nepeese had returned in February and could have taken him unaware, he would have found a changed Barce. He was more than ever like a wolf; yet he never gave the Wolf-howl now, and always he snarled deep in his throat when he heard the cry of the pack. For several weeks the old trap-line had supplied him with meat, but now he hunted. The tepee, in and out, was scattered with fur and bones. Once—alone—he caught a young deer in deep snow and killed it.

THE MONTH OF JUNE

It was the Romans who named June which with them was the fourth month of the year. Some authorities believe it was named after Juno, the great queen of the gods who was the patron of marriage. This probably accounts for the fact that June is the popular marriage month of the year. More probably the name was derived from "juniores," meaning the month specialy dedicated to the younger men, as May was dedicated to the elders. In the time of Romulus June had thirty days. Later it lost four of them and when Julius Caesar began his reform of the calendar it had twenty-nine. He added the extra day and ever since.

CHANGE SYSTEM OF MARKETING FRUIT

As a result of the revelation of an alleged combine to control British Columbia fruit market distributing plan for the 1925 fruit crop will be considerably altered this year. Producers and distributors have held a series of conferences and a programme evolved to place B. C. fruit in a more favorable position particularly in prairie and eastern markets. The plan has been endorsed by 90 per cent of the fruit shippers in the Okanagan district and by 90 per cent of the Winnipeg jobbers, so that two of the most important elements in the situation are satisfied.

THE EXAMINER'S WEEKLY REVIEW OF PROV. MARKETS

CATTLE

BEEF—The Edmonton market is inclined to be quiet, due to lighter receipts, but all the offerings however, especially grain fed cattle, were steadily cleaned up at prices which were strong in spots. Choice heavy steer $6.75@7.25, which is an increase in price of about 25c; choice light $6.75@7.25; good $6 @ $6.50; medium $5.50 @ $6; common $4@5. Choice heifer $5@6.25, good $5.50@6. Choice cow $5@6.25; good $4.50@5; medium $4 @ $4.50; common $3@3.50; canner $1.50@2.50. Choice bulls $225@250 medium $1.75@2; canners from $1.25 up. Choice veal calves $7@8; common $4@5. STOCKERS—Prices steady and the supply moving freely on feed or steers. Quotations are $4@5; stock steers $2.75@4; stock heifers $2@3.5; stock cows $2@2.50.

HOGS

Edmonton market is inclined to be weaker, thick smooths selling off at $10.75, with a 10 per cent premium being paid for bacon.

GRAIN

The valuations that have been received during the past week in the three western provinces have made them outlook for a good crop very bright. It has also had tendency to lower price on the Winnipeg market, as price there have been on the downward road for the past two or three days notwithstanding the fact that estimates of the United States winter wheat yield show the yield as far below that of last year.

BUTTER-CHEESE

DAIRY BUTTER—Prices are not being quoted as high this week as they have previously, due to the increase in production that is being received by the local men. CREAMERY BUTTER—Prices while still holding at the same level, are not expected to do so much longer as prices there have been down and as Alberta has been shipping nearly all its surplus butter west there has got to be a change in the trade to be kept. CREAM—Receipts are increasing every week caused by the better grass conditions. It is found that there is a tainted taste to the cream. CHEESE—Prices are still being quoted and Claresholm instead of being grouped by themselves at any one school. If this plan is adopted, it is anticipated that the overseas board will contribute a sum toward the cost on the same net basis as last year, but to be applied differently. The advantage of the new method would be that the young Britishers would be mixed up with the Canadian boys and would gain by entering once into civilian life of the country. Definite arrangements to this effect will be expected to be made shortly.

THE OCEAN RATES INQUIRY

Outside the House the big feature of the past few weeks has been the investigation into the question of ocean freight rates by the Special Committee appointed for that purpose and the chairman of which is Andrew R. McMaster (Brome). It is expected that the work of taking evidence will probably be completed at the end of next week after which the Committee will have to go through a mass of evidence much of it of a documentary nature. Then they will have to draft a report on the question of the proposed contract between the Federal Government and Sir William Peterson by which the former proposes to get control of ocean freight rates. Sir William himself will be the witness next week and on what he testifies will in large part rest the nature of the report to be made by the Committee. There has been an abundance of evidence substantiating the Government's charge that there is a combine on the North Atlantic controlling ocean rates and keeping them so high as to injuriously affect Canadian trade and industry. The question now to determine whether or not the proposed subsidy scheme will adequately meet the situation.

TARKINGTON'S FIRST A MEIGHAN KNOCKOUT

Booth Tarkington's done it—written an original story for the screen—and for Tom Meighan at that. It's "Pied Piper Malone", which shows here Monday and Tuesday, a comedy-drama with the star in the role of Jack Malone, third mate of the S.S. Langland, Captain Clarke in command. George Lawrentz plays the Captain. Malone is a regular "Pied Piper" to all the kiddies in town. He is "Uncle Jack" to all.

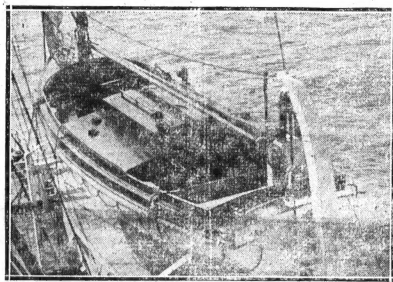

In this case there's not a girl in every port, only in Oldport, Jack's home town, and that's Patty Thomas, the mayor's daughter. Lois Wilson has this part. Charlie Crosby (Cyril Ring) second officer of the Langland, has always claimed Patty as his girl. There is great rivalry between the two men.

Malone is unjustly accused of the responsibility for the loss of the Langland while under the influence of liquor when on duty. Only his parents Party and the Children, believe in him. He beats up Charlie Crosby, when he finds him urging Captain Clarke to "have another" on him in Oldport. Alfred Green directed the production which Tom Geraghty adapted. Charles Stevenson, Joe Burke and others are in the cast.

MORE AUTOMOBILES IN ALBERTA THIS YEAR

It looks as though the motor car population of Alberta this year will considerably outnumber anything the province has known. To date about 47,000 automobile licenses have been issued by the provincial secretary's department, an increase of 47,000 for the whole of last year. And there are seven months still remaining for more business.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

whatever it was, a fixed and positive faith came to Baree just the same. He began to miss the traps in his haste to cover distance—to reach the cabin. It was twenty-five miles from Pierrot's burned home to the first trap-cabin and Baree had made ten of these by nightfall. The remaining fifteen were the most difficult. In the open spaces the snow was belly-deep and soft; in w.h.ch for a few moments he was buried. Three times during the early part of the night, Baree heard the savage dirge of the wolves. Once it was a wild pean of triumph as the hunters pulled down their kill less than half a mile away in the deep forest. But the voice no longer called to him. It was repellent—a voice of hatred and of treachery. Each time that he heard it he stopped in his tracks and snarled, while his spine stiffened.

At midnight Baree came to the tiny amphitheatre in the forest where Pierrot had cut the logs for the first trap-line cabins. For at least a minute Baree stood at the edge of the clearing, his ears very alert, his eyes bright with hope and expectation while he sniffed the air. There was no smoke, no sound no light in the one window of the log shack.

The snow was drifted at the doorway, and here Baree sat down and whined. It was no longer the anxious questing whine of a few hours ago. Now it voiced hopelessness and a deep despair. For half an hour he sat shivering with his back to the door and his face to the stark wilderness, as if there still remained the fleecing hope that Nepeese might follow after him over the trail. Then he burrowed himself a hole deep in the snowdrift and passed the remainder of the night in uneasy slumber.

With the first light of day Baree resumed the trail. He was not so alert this morning. There was the disconcerting late drop to his tail which the Indians call the Akosewin—the sign of the sick dog. And Baree was sick—not of body but of soul. The keenness of his hope had died, and he no longer expected to find the Willow. The second cabin at the far end of the trap-line drew him on, but it inspired in him none of the enthusiasm with which he had hurried to the first. He travelled slowly and spasmodically, his suspicions of the forests again replacing the excitement of his quest. He approached each of Pierrot's traps and deadfalls cautiously, and twice he showed his fangs—once at a marten that sniped at him from under a root where it had dragged the trap in which it was caught, and the second time at a big snowy owl that had come to steal bait and was now a prisoner at the end of a steel chain.

There were plenty of rabbits in Pierrot's traps, and Baree did not go bungling. He reached the second trap-line cabin late in the afternoon, after ten hours of traveling. He met with no very great disappointment here, for he had not anticipated very much. The snow had blanked this cabin even higher or than the other. It was three feet deep against the door, and the window was white with a thick coating of frost. At this place, which was close to the edge of a big barren, and unsheltered by the thick forests farther back, Pierrot had built a shelter for his firewood, and in this shelter Baree made his temporary home. All the next day he remained somewhere near the end of the trap-line, skirting the edge of the barren and investigating the short side line of a dozen traps which Pierrot and Nepeese had strung through a swamp in which there had been many signs of lynx. It was the third day before he set out on his return to the Gray Loon.

He did not travel very fast, spending two days in covering the twenty-five miles between the first and the second trap-line cabins. At the second cabin he remained for three days, and it was on the ninth day that he reached the Gray Loon. There was no change. There were no tracks in the snow but his own, made nine days ago. And then, of a sudden, Baree made a change. He spent a night in the tepee. After that, whenever he was at the Gray Loon, during the days he always slept in the tepee. The two blankets were his bed—and they were a part of Nepeese. And there, all through the long winter he waited.

If Nepeese had returned in February and could have taken him unaware he would have found a changed Baree. He was more than ever like a wolf; yet he never gasped the wolf-howl now, and always he snarled deep in his throat when he heard the cry of the pack. For several weeks the old trap-line had supplied him with meat, but now he hunted. The tepee, in and out, was scattered with fur and bones. Once—alone—he caught a young deer in deep snow and killed it.

Radio Report of Sea-Bomb Blast to Guide Ships

The sound of the explosion of a small TNT bomb, towed along the side of a ship at sea, may be used to give the vessel's exact location, under a new method developed by the Coast and Geodetic Survey and successfully tried out on the southern California coast. Based upon the fact that water transmits sound at a definite speed, the Coast Survey engineers devised a means by which the bomb may be fired beneath the water alongside the ship, the exact instant of firing being recorded on an electrical clock equipped with a fountain pen. The shore wireless

Radio Tubes to Melt Steel

Masses of steel can be melted to white-hot liquid with the aid of tubes such as are used in wireless outfits, according to Dr. C. H. Desch, of the metallurgy university at Sheffield, Eng. It is planned to pass alternating current of 200 volts through them at extremely high frequency and then into the metal, which becomes hotter than the crucible containing

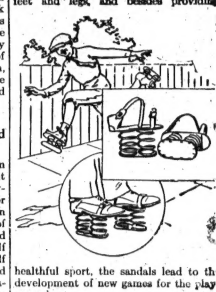

Elephant's Appetite Calls for Food

Twenty-Three Hours a Day
Elephants apparently have appetites in keeping with their size for in India about twenty-three hours out of the twenty-four are consumed in eating and one or more men are employed to keep them in food. This consists of grass, boughs of trees and grain and huge cakes, called "chappatty," each about two and one-half feet in diameter and an inch and a half thick. They also made of coarse ground meal and are relished by the Indian natives themselves. The mahouts become greatly attached to their beasts. They entertain many superstitions regarding their charges and are said to use a special "elephant language." The number of hairs on the animal's tails and the color and position of their toenails are believed to be signs of good or bad luck. In spite of their great bulk, elephants are capable of considerable speed and can carry loads up to 1,000 pounds through the roughest country.

Springs on Skates Worn as Skater

Add to Children's Sport
Spring sandals strapped on like skates and with two stout steel coils fastened between the bottom and a lower leather-padded sole, are now on the market for boys' and girls' amusement. They are made in five different sizes and stiffness of springs for small and larger children, and the springs are so flexible that there is practically no danger of turning the ankle. Walking or jumping with them is said to strengthen the muscles of the feet and legs, and besides providing healthful sport, the sandals lead to the development of new games for the playground.
